Billboard magazine lists George Strait as the top country music artist over the past 25 years.

Billboard: Strait top artist for 25 years

George Strait sits atop Billboard's list of the top 25 country music artists of the past 25 years. The Texas-based singer beat out Garth Brooks on a star-studded list compiled by the magazine to coincide with its Country Music Summit on Monday and Tuesday in Nashville, Tenn. Strait and Brooks are followed by Reba McEntire, Alan Jackson and Tim McGraw in the top five. Billboard used success on its country album and song charts to compile the list.

Gary Coleman's ex: Planned to re-wed

Gary Coleman's ex-wife calls their relationship "golden" and says that before his recent death they had planned to renew their marital vows. In an interview aired on Monday's "Good Morning America," Shannon Price says she had ordered that Coleman be taken off of life support on the advice of his doctors. The one-time child actor died May 28 in Utah at age 42 after suffering a brain hemorrhage two days earlier. Price told ABC News that she had found Coleman lying in a pool of blood in their kitchen after hearing what she called "a big smack." The couple had divorced in 2008, but Price says they later agreed that divorce "wasn't the right choice." Coleman starred for eight seasons on the sitcom "Diff'rent Strokes." It debuted in 1978, when he was 10.

Michael Caine memoir due this fall

Caine

Sir Michael Caine hasn't finished telling us what it's all about. The 77-year-old Academy Award-winning actor is working on a second memoir, "The Elephant to Hollywood," a sequel that will come nearly 20 years after "What's It All About?" Henry Holt and Company will release the new book in November. The publisher announced the book Monday. Caine's many films include "Alfie," "Educating Rita," and two works for which he received Oscars, "Hannah and Her Sisters" and "The Cider House Rules."

At The Jones Eastside in Gainesville, tempeh can be used in any dish as a meat alternative. The tempeh in this dish, Tempeh Cutlets Provencal, has been pan-seared and sauteed with bell peppers and tomatoes in a ginger sauce.

Spicy Tempeh Tacos

8 ounces tempeh strips, chopped
1/2 cup water
1 red bell pepper, chopped
2 teaspoons taco seasoning
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 cup cooked black beans, drained
1 tomato, chopped
1 onion, chopped
handful chopped lettuce
4 ounces grated hard (soy) cheese
8 whole wheat tortillas

Sauté the tempeh in the olive oil for about 4 minutes. Add red pepper and onion and continue to sauté for about 7 minutes more. Add the taco seasoning, 1/2 cup water and the beans and cook for about 5 minutes or until most of the water has evaporated. Serve in the tortillas with the chopped lettuce, tomato and cheese. Serves 4.

Local proprietors' Indonesian soybean alternative to meat spreads by word-of-mouth

By Lauren Joos
Correspondent

Begin with a 50-pound batch of soybeans. De-hull them, boil them, dry them, then add the tempeh culture that uses the spores of a specific mold to inoculate the beans to ferment them. After about 30 hours, this process produces what Jose Caraballo, 65, is so proud to tell people about: tempeh. Caraballo turned his homemade tempeh into a 25-year-old business that supplies more than 20 restaurants in the Gainesville area with the soy-based meat alternative. With apprentices—including one now supplying more than 100 restaurants in North Central Florida—he hopes to ensure that small, local tempeh shops in every town will defeat the few factories mass-producing tempeh. Tempeh began centuries ago in Indonesia.

TEMPEH: Meat alternative can be grilled, seared and fried

Caraballo models his Tempeh Shop after the way the islands produce tempeh, offering it to anyone interested and teaching them the craft so they can set up shop in their own hometown.

To date, Caraballo has trained three apprentices, four if you count the partnership with his son. Two have set up shops outside the state — one in Seattle and another in Brooklyn, N.Y.

The other apprentice, Art Guy, 42, owns Artie's Tempeh and sells throughout North Central Florida, including Gainesville, Jacksonville and St. Augustine.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY LAUREN JOOS/CORRESPONDENT

Jose Caraballo of The Tempeh Shop and his son, Damien, fill and flatten bags of soybeans and tempeh culture to be fermented.

Art Guy of Artie's Tempeh makes a local delivery to Ward's supermarket on bicycle.

"comparable to chicken," boasts Caraballo's website.

Like most meat alternatives, tempeh can be grilled, seared and fried. At restaurants, it is served as a meat analog in vegetarian dishes, cooked to fit the menu such as crumbling the tempeh and cooking it in a Jamaican curry sauce as Reggae Shack Cafe's menu lists.

Caraballo began making tempeh after trying it during a visit to a spiritual camp called The Farm in Tennessee in the 1970s. When he moved to Gainesville in the early 1980s, he experimented by making it for his family and eventually some of his friends. While starting a business wasn't in his plans, news of his tempeh spread by word-of-mouth in Gainesville and soon restaurant owners wanted it on local menus.

"The customers started asking for it so I started carrying it several years ago," said Omar Oselimo, owner of Reggae Shack Cafe.

Oselimo said he hadn't heard of tempeh before, so he started investigating. He found out about Caraballo from Ward's Supermarket, which carries both Caraballo's and Guy's tempeh. Because Oselimo owned a restaurant, Caraballo was willing to teach him how to cook the tempeh.

"The curry tempeh was a big hit," Oselimo said. "It's our number one selling vegetarian item."

Twenty-five years later, Caraballo boasts that he still has not approached anyone for business.

"My product has sold itself," he said. "One restaurant does well and another will find out and try it."

He has refined his tempeh-crafting process over the years, down to the technology he uses. He built it all himself from the mechanism to perforate the bags to the air dryer.

Caraballo's Tempeh Shop can produce more than 250 pounds of tempeh a day. Caraballo and his son

Tangy Tempeh with Peanut Sauce

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
4 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
1/3 cup rice wine
1 clove garlic, minced
8 ounces tempeh strips (or small cubes)
1 cup peanut butter
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon fresh ginger root, minced
2 cloves garlic, crushed
salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup hot water

To make the marinade mix the first five ingredients. Put the tempeh in a wide frying pan. Pour the marinade over the tempeh. Bring to a boil and simmer over low heat during 15 minutes. Turn tempeh a few times. Uncover and cook until the tempeh is nearly dry.

To make the peanut sauce mix in a blender the peanut butter, honey, soy sauce, vinegar, ginger, garlic, water, salt and pepper.

Serve over rice and top with peanut sauce.

Serves 4.

— From The Tempeh Shop

Stir-fried Tempeh

8 ounces tempeh, cubed
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, minced
3 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
1 medium onion, chopped
2 carrots, cubed
1 cup asparagus, cut into 5 cm pieces
1 red bell pepper, cut into strips
1 teaspoon vinegar
2 teaspoons cornstarch

Steam tempeh for 10 minutes. Mix tempeh with soy sauce and garlic and marinate for 1 hour.

Heat oil in a pan and add ginger and cook for 1 minute. Add onion and carrots and stir-fry 6 minutes.

Add tempeh with its marinade, asparagus and bell pepper. Stir-fry until the asparagus are soft. Dissolve the cornstarch in 1/4 cup water and add together with the vinegar to the mixture. Bring to boiling point and cook for one minute.

Serve the stir-fried tempeh with rice or noodles.

Serves 4.

— From The Tempeh Shop

Damian, 25, also sell frozen tempeh anywhere in the state as far as Key West. They even sell dehydrated tempeh that can be shipped all over the country and have had orders from as far as California and Washington.
